A: that is the possible problem, The activation is checked in the registry, if it is not activated with that key it will activate it according to that key! You can do that with the command line tool regedt32.exe. this file should be the newest for your windows version, so open it as an administrator go to the tool entry point you can see it in the first line on the picture below go to the following lines 4. you can see a string with the activate key, copy it run your executable file with this text as parameter. the result is valid? you can also define what to activate also, worth to mention, that there is a 3rd party tool named "optiloader" which can do this without any registry manipulations. Fans of Call of Duty have already been enjoying the first downloadable content called Call of Duty: Modern Warfare 2. This is something that has come to be expected for games of this type. Modern Warfare 2 will be available on November 4th, and will feature new multiplayer missions and content. However, there is also a new map that fans will get to experience. At the Call of Duty XP event in New York, Infinity Ward's Mark Rubin and Patrick Kelly have revealed a couple of aspects concerning the new map, which is called Objective. The map has been revealed to be an urban setting, and it will feature some rather interesting concepts. "Attacking the Modern Warfare 2 first-person shooter map Objective is about taking a step back from the traditional vertical urban warfare into a horizontal and non-urban battlefield," said Rubin. "This new style of play opens a new direction for the franchise by moving away from the urban environments the series is built on and introducing a new direction that feels fresh and innovative." According to Rubin, the map plays like a simple take on Call of Duty: World at War, and that was something he wanted to do right away. "The objective for the player should be to win and survive. The enemy could win by destroying your weapons
